

The University of Wisconsin-Madison's
European Union Center
Center for European Studies and Office of the Dean of International Studies

are pleased to host two talks by Distinguished International Visitor

Ambassador Stuart E. Eizenstat

on
Tuesday, April 12, 2005

"Imperfect Justice: Looted Assets, Slave Labor and the Unfinished Business of World War II"

1:30 p.m.

Lubar Commons, Law School

(Cosponsored by the Center for Jewish Studies and the Center for German and European Studies)

AND

"Transatlantic Relations
in the Second Bush Term"

3:00 p.m.

Lee Lounge, Pyle Center

702 Langdon St.

(Cosponsored by the Center for World Affairs and the Global Economy)

Ambassador Eizenstat has held numerous high-level positions during a decade and a half of government service, including serving as Ambassador to the European Union from 1993-1996, Deputy Treasury Secretary, Under Secretary of State, and Under Secretary of Commerce in the Clinton administration, and White House Chief Domestic Policy Advisor for the Carter administration. During the Clinton Administration he was instrumental in the development of the U.S.-European Union Transatlantic Agenda and the Transatlantic Business Dialogue (between CEOs in Europe and the U.S.). The recent renewal of interest in unresolved World War II topics owes much to Eizenstat: As Special Representative of President Clinton and the Secretary of State, he negotiated major agreements with the French, Swiss, Austrians, and Germans on Holocaust-related issues. These efforts led to the publication of the book, Imperfect Justice: Looted Assets, Slave Labor and the Unfinished Business of World War II, in which Eizenstat narrates the process of negotiation and agreement between these nations. Ambassador Eizenstat received his J.D. from Harvard University in 1967.

Ambassador Eizenstat currently leads the international business law department of Covington & Burling of Washington, D.C., is co-chair of the European-American Business Council (EABC), and retains responsibilities as special envoy for property claims in Central and Eastern Europe, advising the Bush administration.

The European Union Center
The University of Wisconsin-Madison
213 Ingraham, 1155 Observatory Drive
Madison, WI 53706
608.265.8040

Email: eucenter@intl-institute.wisc.edu

Web: <http://eucenter.wisc.edu>

